

YOUNG WOMAN SHOT WITH AN "UNLOADED" GUN

Wounded While Re-Enacting
Scene From a Western Thriller With Cousin

Mrs. Mary Mulrooney, the young wife of John C. Mulrooney, of No. 66 Nassau street, Brooklyn, came near taking the life of her pretty cousin, Margaret Price, to-day while endeavoring to reproduce a scene from a Western "thriller" which the two young women had witnessed last evening at a Brooklyn theatre.

That Miss Price was not killed was due entirely to the bad aim of Mrs. Mulrooney in handling a revolver, as the former is recovering from the shock of having received a bullet in the fleshy part of the shoulder.

Miss Price, who resides with Mrs. Mulrooney, accompanied her last evening to see the "Rocky Mountain Express." They saw much shooting and several hold-ups in real Western fashion, and returned to their home well pleased with the performance.

Mrs. Mulrooney's husband usually has a revolver on the dresser in his room. This morning, when the young women awoke, Mr. Mulrooney had left the house, and while dressing Mrs. Mulrooney and Miss Price were discussing a particularly thrilling scene in the play. Suddenly Mrs. Mulrooney espied the pistol on the dresser, and, believing it was not loaded, dramatically four-shed it in the air and pointing it at her companion, cried:

"William, you die!" and she pulled the trigger.

Mrs. Mulrooney was not only amazed at the report of the affair, but she swooned as Miss Price fell screaming to the floor with a bullet wound in the shoulder.

Amidst the confusion, Mrs. Mulrooney had only sustained a slight wound. After binding it up he turned to Mrs. Mulrooney, who had become hysterical after recovering from her fainting spell and quivered her.

The police were on hand to make an arrest, but Miss Price insisted that the shooting had been entirely accidental and refused to make any complaint.

HER BABY KILLED IN MOTHER'S SIGHT

Four-year-old Andrew Cervenky was "helping" his mother do the family washing to-day. He toddled around after her as she worked in the kitchen of a little flat on the sixth floor of the apartment at No. 128 Avenue A and on the tips of his dimpled toes at the window, watching in amazement as Mrs. Cervenky hung the wet clothes on the line, gave a pull at the rope and caused them to disappear.

Into little Andrew's brain popped the idea that one tube he climbed upon a busy box at the window and gazed out upon a vista of waving clothes hanging on myria lines.

He clapped his hands and cooed with pleasure at the sight. Mrs. Cervenky heard him and made a rush for him. The child, startled by her action, involuntarily moved toward the window and fell outward.

The mother made a despairing grab and caught his little skirt. It tore in and his hands and her baby dropped to the courtyard below. He was instantly killed.
